

Barbara Eichorst, MS, RD, CDCES is a Vice President of Health Programs at

American Diabetes Association (ADA) where she leads Nutrition, Education Recognition Programs, and Community Engagement/Impact. Prior, she was an Associate Vice President of Clinical Practice and Research at CenterWell home health. Barbara's involvement in diabetes care is dedicated to patient/relationship focused interventions. She had lead a global diabetes self-management education and support (DSMES) program that involved over 120 countries. She has also worked with digital therapeutics field and insulin titration. Barbara lives in Chicago and had practice dietetics in three academic Medical Centers like Northwestern, Loyola and Rush University Medicine.